

Special Visitors

At St John the Baptist School, we believe it is vitally important for our students' eyes to be opened to what life is like for thousands of others who do not live with all the modern conveniences we have at our fingertips here in this lucky country, Australia. While we can talk about the conditions others live in overseas and in some poorer communities here in Australia, the message is all the more real when the story is told from someone who actually lives there and works within such communities.

At times, our school is fortunate enough to be visited by special visitors to our area who have an important religious message they can impart to our students. Some of these visitors are from Mission centres overseas and it is a wonderful opportunity for our students to hear their personal stories about what life is like in communities where others are living in very poor conditions. Some visitors to our school share their experiences of Jesus in their lives and how this knowledge and recognition has made a difference to their lives and their way of living.

For a few years in a row now, we have been visited by Mr Peter Mitchell, the designer of the Making Jesus Real
